Attention

Comdial® makes every effort to design the features in our communications systems to be fully interactive. Under certain conditions, some features may be incompatible with each other and will not work simultaneously. Comdial assumes no responsibility for problems caused by incompatible features.

The possible combinations of accessories and features are far too numerous for us to document in this manual. Furthermore, Comdial Corporation cannot guarantee that features will operate as described in this publication when they are combined with other features.

Introduction

Your telephone is probably arranged to provide an intercom dial tone when the handset is lifted. This arrangement is known as “prime intercom.” It may, however, be arranged to provide outside line dial tone instead. This arrangement is known as “prime line automatic” or “idle line preference.” The instructions included herein are written for telephones with “prime intercom.” This means that you can dial the system feature codes as soon as you lift the handset. If your telephone is arranged otherwise, you must obtain intercom dial tone before you can dial the various feature codes. You do this by pressing the ITCM button after you hear the outside line dial tone.

Your telephone has a light located on the HOLD button. Different activities are indicated by different flash rates of this light. These flash rates are described below:
